Test Name	Results	Range
Thyroid Stimulating Hormone (TSH)*	4.0 uIU/mL	0.35 - 5.5 uIU/mL

Thyroid Stimulating Hormone (TSH) test result is within a desirable reference range

A TSH result between 0.35 and 5.50 is considered normal. A result greater than 5.50 could be an indication of an under active thyroid (hypothyroidism), while a result less than 0.35 could indicate an overactive thyroid (hyperthyroidism). If either out-of-range condition is present, your physician may order further testing to determine what course of treatment is appropriate.

*Tests are performed by either:
HealthPoint Diagnostix, Inc. Lincolnshire, IL 60069 or
New Century Diagnostics, Buffalo Grove, IL 60089

Test results do not make a diagnosis of any kind and should never replace an office visit with your doctor.

Never adjust your medications before you consult with your physician.
